

Council of Oathaven
from
Swordlord Jamandi Aldori of Restov

Greetings to the Baron's Council of Oathaven. I dearly hope this missive finds you in good health. A month has passed with no word from your new nation, and considering the difficulties with contacting Varnhold, there is some concern in the halls of Restov over the fate of another young realm.

With the delicate balance of Brevoys strained lately, Restov can do little but watch warily over our borders. The centaurs that roam the Women Heights can be troublesome, but they were rarely seen before we lost contact with Varnhold. Now their patrols are seen across the river. It is unknown at this time if the centaurs are the cause of silence from Varnhold, but if not, the barbaric horselords are certainly taking advantage of it.

There have been endless debates about moving troops to the south in case the centaurs or some other threat is preparing to boil across the Shrike, but the truth is that without a clear reason to activate the militia, New Stetven will likely take any military changes as a threat and respond accordingly.

Please consider looking into what happened at Varnhold. As my Lord Mayor so tactfully stated, Restov can do nothing, but if something terrible has happened, either of our nations could be next and we need to know more in order to prepare.

Hoping for a quick and positive response,

Jamandi Aldori, Swordlord of Restov